Maynadier House (Sycamore Cottage, Dixon House)
116 High Street
Cambridge
Private

The front portion of this frame house is two-and-one-half-stories tall with a gable roof. There are three bays across the front and the windows are six-over-six sash. In the gable end, on the front, is an attic window with flanking sidelights. In front of the door is a one-story gabled portico supported by rectangular columns. On each side of the door is a rectangular sidelight between two pilasters and a taller pilaster at the corners of the portico. There are two massive chimneys in the center of this portion of the house.

The smaller gable-roofed two-story wing in the rear is the older portion of this house and dates to some time after 1759. It was built by the Rev. Daniel Maynadier and his wife, Mary. He was the rector of Great Choptank Parish from 1765 to 1772. His wife was the granddaughter of William Vans Murray, minister to Holland, who had purchased this land from John Kirk in 1725. The land was conveyed to Mary by James Murray, the son of William Vans Murray, in 1759. She and her husband built Sycamore Cottage shortly thereafter. Four generations of Maynadiers owned Sycamore Cottage until 1828, when the property was sold to Henry Page and his wife, Charlotte. In 1840, Page sold the front part of this house to Jeremiah Wright, who moved it down the street. This half of the house is presently in use as the headquarters for the Woman's Club (See D-142).

In 1841 Page conveyed the property to Thomas H. Hicks as trustee. That deed refers to the lot on the southeast side of High Street "whereon the said Henry Page hath erected a large two story building and now resides." This indicates that Page had constructed a substantial home on the lot since 1828. Moreover, the selling price in 1841 was five thousand dollars. When Page's widow sold the property in 1849, she also sold it for five thousand dollars. Dr. Richard H. Dixon bought the house in 1865. It remained in the Dixon family until 1919 and is sometimes referred to as the Dixon House.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

History:

This house was built by Rev. Daniel Maynadier and his wife, Mary, sometime after 1759. Maynadier was a French Huguenot who fled to escape persecution. He was the rector of Great Choptank Parish from 1765 to 1772. His wife was the granddaughter of William Vans Murray, (Ambassador to Holland), who purchased this land from John Kirk in 1725. The land was conveyed to Mary by James Murray, the son of William Vans Murray, in 1759. She and her husband built Sycamore Cottage shortly thereafter. Four generations of Maynadiers owned Sycamore Cottage. In 1828, the property was sold to Henry Page and his wife Charlotte. In 1840, Page sold the front part of this house to Jeremiah Wright, who moved it down the street. This half of the house is still standing and is presently in use as the headquarters for the Woman's Club. The front part of 116 High Street was built by Henry Page sometime after 1840.

Significance:

Although extensively altered by the addition of a large Federal style wing on the front, this is one of the oldest houses on High Street. It is an attractive, well maintained dwelling and contributes to the historic character of High Street.

After making a title search that took the lot back to 1827 I cannot confirm or deny the conclusion already presented by Cathe Moore that the rear part of the present house dates from the mid eighteenth century. It is quite obvious in inspecting the house that the back portion was built at a different than the front. Henry Page purchased the property in 1828 from Henry G. Maynadier of Anne Arundel County for $500.00. I have been unable to find any record of the sale of the house to Jeremiah Wright. In 1841 Page conveyed the property to Thomas H. Hicks as trustee. That deed refers to the lot on the southeast side of High Street "whereon the said Henry Page hath erected a large two story building and now resides."¹ This indicates that Page had constructed a substantial home on the lot since 1828. Moreover, the selling price in 1841 was $5,000. When Page's widow sold the property in 1849, she also sold it for $5,000. Dr. Richard H. Dixon bought the house in 1865. It remained in the Dixon family until 1919 and is sometimes referred to as the Dixon house.
